PRECONFERENCE SCHEDULE

11:15 - 12:00 REGISTRATION

12:00 - 1:00 WORKING LUNCH

12:00 - 12:50 DEC 101

Cristi Cain, Director, Local Public Health Program and Accreditation Coordinator at Kansas Department of Health and Environment

Jennifer Gassmann, Drug Endangered Child Specialist

Tom Stanton, Deputy Reno County District Attorney

In this course participants will be introduced to the concept of “Drug Endangered Children.” The course identifies factors which create an environment where the possession, use, distribution, and/or manufacture of controlled substances endanger the health and safety of children. It will also discuss methods of criminal investigation from the perspective of the narcotics investigation and the Child in Need of Care investigation. Finally, it will describe methods for inter-agency cooperation to provide a safe environment for drug endangered children.

12:50 - 1:00 Break

1:00 - 1:50 DRUG TRENDS

Beth Heflin, MD, FAAP, Pediatric Hospitalist, Via Cristi Clinic

Tom Stanton, Deputy Reno County District Attorney

This course describes current drug trends in Kansas, as well as abuse related to controlled substances that might well be making their way towards our state. The course describes commonly abused stimulants, opioids, marijuana and other tetrahydrocannabinols, and prescription depressants. The presentation will also describe physical and physiological signs of the abuse of these drugs, as well as medical interventions used to treat abuse of, or overdose as a result of abuse of, controlled substances.

1:50 - 2:00 Break

2:00 - 2:50 MEDICAL CONSEQUENCES OF DRUG ENVIRONMENTS OF CHILDREN

Beth Heflin, MD, FAAP, Pediatric Hospitalist, Via Cristi Clinic

Law enforcement officers, social workers, medical personnel and other professional workers discover drug environments effecting hundreds of Kansas children every year. Many of these children need medical attention to diminish the consequences of the drugs and/or drug environments to which they are subjected. Attendees will be given information about the effects of drugs of abuse on children of all ages. These include effects on the fetus exposed in utero, the breastfeeding infant, and children being raised by drug-abusing caregivers.

2:50 - 3:00 Break

3:00 - 4:25 TRANSFORMING COMMUNITIES BY CREATING TRAUMA INFORMED SYSTEMS OF CARE

Dr. Tiffany Anderson, Superintendent of Schools, Topeka Public Schools

Despite an increasing focus on creating community conditions that improve health, zip codes remain a more accurate determinant of health than our genetic codes. These efforts often occur in silos, resulting in missed opportunities to leverage community support to improve health at the local level. To change this reality, we must draw on leaders such as Dr. Tiffany Anderson who work collaboratively to improve health outcomes and address social determinants of health.

4:25 - 4:35 Break

4:35 - 5:00 PANEL DISCUSSION: CREATING DEC ALLIANCES

Cristi Cain, Director, Local Public Health Program and Accreditation Coordinator at Kansas Department of Health and Environment

Jennifer Gassmann, Drug Endangered Child Specialist

Sgt. Glenn Hawks, Deputy, Shawnee County Sheriff's Office

Sandra Lessor, Assistant District Attorney, Sedgwick County

Dulcinea Rakestraw, MPH, LBSW, LAC

Cooperation and teamwork among agencies are the cornerstones of protecting children from the dangers of home environments where controlled substances are used, possessed, sold or manufactured. Resources are available through existing national, state and local DEC Alliances to assist agencies in local jurisdictions in teaming up to create a united front dedicated to the protection of drug endangered children. The presenters in this panel discussion will bring the attendees information and insight into this process. The information presented will include sources such as the National Alliance for Drug Endangered Children, the Kansas Alliance for Drug Endangered Children, and local DEC Alliances in Shawnee and Sedgwick Counties.

PRESENTERS

DR. TIFFANY ANDERSON

Dr. Tiffany Anderson, superintendent of Topeka Public Schools, has been referred to by the Washington Post and NPR as “the superintendent who made schools work for poor children.” Her recent work led to the first trauma-informed school district in St. Louis, Missouri. Her holistic strategies include addressing both physical and behavioral health in school settings, which have led to significantly improved outcomes for her students. Dr. Anderson will share her experiences as a community leader and educator who works to address significant barriers that affect the ability of children to learn and be healthy such as hunger, poverty and trauma. Her approaches include training all staff on dealing with trauma and other social factors that impact children. Dr. Anderson inspires multidisciplinary professionals to engage new partners, collaborate and take unique approaches to addressing difficult community issues.

CRISTI CAIN

Cristi is the director of the Local Public Health Program and the accreditation coordinator for the recently accredited Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE), where she has worked since 2013. Her work focuses on providing training and technical assistance to public health professionals.
